To Joshua.

Upon a scrap of paper sent to me,
I read the lines which you indited,
And by those lines, I judge that you
By some "fair one" is sadly slighted.

No love "sick swain" e're sung in verse,
Such flattering lines as you have written,
Without he previously had got.
The present of a lady's mitten.

But you it seems are challenging,
A scope of country far around,
Within whose limits I do know,
That many a pretty one is found.

It is useless, sir! for any man,
To even undertake to tell,
That "Moodus has no 'pretty girls,'
Or Hadlyme can't afford a Bell-e.

Or Goodspeed's Landing, noted place,
Or Leesville too, with all her cotton
Cannot afford some pretty ones,
Why Joshua! you must be mistaken,

Did I but live in either place,
On which you are inclined to trample,
I'd "get me up" a fancy team,
And bring you out a little sample.

I would drive out upon the green,
Some Sunday morn to church with Kitty,
And e're I left, I think you'd say,
You never saw one half so pretty.

Friend Joshua! I surely am aware,
That Millington is famed for beauty,
But still I think there's others there,
Which look just as well as Hattie's.

But Joshua, I would not hope you think,
That I would your hopes discourage,
But would recommend you to proceed,
And try and gain her hand in marriage.

There is an adage old but true,
Perhaps you may think it rather shady,
But I would have you recollect,
That "Faint heart never won fair lady."

To one important part you must attend,
As you proceed to dress your suit,
Be sure and make distinction 'tween
Miss Hattie's hand and "daddy's foot"

Now Joshua, if you do succeed,
Pray let us have an understanding,
That you are to leave the cards for me,
With Mr. Blodgett at the Landing.
TOM LONGFELLOW.

Dedicated to S. B. and T. C. S.

As Hard and Soft in Nature 'mixt,
Will form a compound half betwixt;
So Good and Evil mixed together,
Are oft mistaken for the other.

Distance of some good, and see
If in that good, no evil be;
Further still in distance go,
And tell me is this all good or no?

Come back half way, and then you'll find,
There's good and evil both combined,
If good no evil can contain,
Take good from evil can ought remain.

Expressed in little drops of rain,
'Twill nourish as 'twill drown us too;
For that which mixed with nature's care;
Will cure an evil every where.

Has Nature's God forgot
To place in nature, that which ought
To make the evil good in turn;
And good enough to make it all in one.

In Halls or Glens or Hollows deep,
Man seeks to find that golden heap,
He seeks and looks with utmost care,
And finds it scattered everywhere.

Go then and search where truth's alive,
Be kind and lend the truth you have,
Remember all is good we find,
And give to all that good demand.

No matter where we look for good,
So long we love and honor God,
One thing you'll find there's good enough
Make all a hard or all a soft.

Chester, Feb. 18, 1860.

The Husband to his Wife.

I ask thee not to yield thy love
For that even now is mine,
I ask the not thy faith to prove,
Thy heart is truth's purest shrine.

Thou canst not paint the lily fair,
Nor gild the mine's pure gold—
Nature has lined a richness there,
Which art can ne'er unfold.

But oh! I have one poor request,
Sanctioned by gods and men—
Thy power can give love a zest,
Say, will you grant it then?

She smiles: assent—what is it—life
The favor now disclose;
Said he, my own, my dearest wife,
Go WIPE THE BABY'S NOSE!

There is a grocer in Pennsylvania, who is said to be so mean, that he was seen, to catch a fly off his counter, hold him up by the hind legs, and look into the cracks of his feet to see if he hadn't been stealing some of his sugar.

The greatest pleasure of life is love; the greatest treasure, contentment; the greatest possession, health; the greatest ease is sleep, and the greatest medicine a true friend.

"La me!" sighed Mrs Partington, "here I have been sufferin' the bigamies of death three mortal weeks. Fust, I was seized with a bleeding phrenology in the left hemisphere of the brain, which was exceeded by a stoppage of the left ventilator of the heart. This gave me an inflammation in the borax, and now I'm siek with the cloryform morbus. There is no blessin' like that of health, particularly when yo're sick."

FOR THE JOURNAL.

"Mother! O my mother!" The words came forth, in low, heart-thrilling tones, from the lips of a young girl, who knelt beside a grass-grown grave in a New England churchyard. A strange picture she presented, as she knelt there in the warm spring sunset, with her long hair floating in tangled masses about her slight form, and her pale face pressed against the tall white monument beside her. A singular face was that, and one that the most careless beholder would not pass by without a glance; so young, and yet so sorrowful. Already there were lines of care on the broad, white brow; and a look of deep, heart-crushing sorrow in the dark, sad eyes.

Slowly the bright sunset tints died out from the west, and the pale light of the many stars came quivering down through the swaying willow tree, and rested at last on the dew-gemmed turf at her feet. But she heeded it not—heeded not the rare beauty of the night, nor the rapidly passing moments, as, with bowed head and folded hands she mused on that broad life-field of mortals—the past, the present and the future. The past—she could not dwell long there; now it was full of light, and gladness, and now of dull, agonizing grief, such as only those who have seen a loved one die can know. The present could not be otherwise than sad, when there, in "the still chambers of the dead," lay all that remained of her best friend—her mother. What though her father was the owner of many a broad acre, and a stately mansion was her home, another filled her saintly mother's place; and she felt like an outcast—a dependent on the bounty of those who should have been near to her, for the necessities of life, and a few tender words, which she so longed for, and which, alas! she never heard.

The future—what had it in store for her but the same dreary round of sorrow? And, in her wild despair, Elsie More prayed that she might, ere long, sleep beside her mother there. Oh! ye gay and happy sons of earth—ye who have never felt the "withering blight of sorrow," pause and pity the young heart that, from its inmost depths, can pray for that fearful thing—death.

That night the father of Elsie More died. On her return home, after an absence of several hours, she learned that he had been thrown from his horse, while on his way from a political meeting in a neighboring town, and it was feared, fatally injured. That, even then, a servant had gone in pursuit of her, as he had expressed a wish to see his only child once more.

With a faltering step, she ascended the head stairway, and entered the lofty apartment where he lay. No one was present save the family physician—for Mrs. More on hearing the sad intelligence had fallen into violent hysterics, and was consigned to the care of a servant, in her own room. Elsie needed no one to tell her, as she glanced at his pallid face, the hand of death was there; the labored breath and glaring eyes told, but too plainly, the solemn fact.

All the old love that had lain so long slumbering in heart sprung up as she beheld that once proud form awaiting so helplessly "the grim destroyer." Forgotten then, was the harshness and neglect of later days; and she could only think of him as the kind, indulgent parent of her earlier years. Those dying eyes gleamed tenderly upon her, as she pressed the cold hands to her lips. But he was too far gone to speak, and could only lay his hands in silent blessings on her head, ere the dread summons came, and Elsie More was an orphan.

One month later, and Elsie bade adieu to her beautiful home, and went forth to battle with the world. On the settlement of her father's estate, it was found to be deeply involved in debt; and that, after satisfying the demands of the numerous creditors, nothing would remain for his widow and child. The former on learning this, immediately departed to reside with a wealthy relative in another State, leaving Elsie to depend on her own untried exertions for a livelihood. Through the agency of one of the servants, employment was procured for her in a large manufacturing village, some twenty miles distant, and thither she went. Then, indeed, a new life opened before her—and a hard toilsome one she found it to be. Her former lot she had thought unendurable; but this was infinitely worse. Then she had only sorrow to contend with; but now, poverty was added to it. Unaccustomed as she was to labor, she at first found it very difficult; and almost impossible to perform her allotted tasks. Then, too, her sad and silent manner attracted first the notice and then the ridicule of her fellow-laborers—whose unfeeling jests and remarks added not a little to the unpleasantness of her situation.

All through the long, warm, summer days she toiled, her wearied frame calling vainly out for rest; but there was none for her—she must work or starve. And oh! how horrible seemed the noisome, flying machinery, and dark stifling rooms, compared with the bright sunshine, and the free, pure air without.

"She is so like our own dear Anna. If you could only see her, Richard, I'm sure you would not object."

"Nonsense, Hester!" replied the wealthy merchant, Richard Gray, as he indolently sipped his coffee. "What a ridiculous idea for you to think of adopting an ignorant factory-girl—imagining, all the while that she resembles poor Annie."

"That she is neither low nor ignorant I am fully convinced," replied the lady, warmly. "I am almost certain that she has seen better days, and that misfortune has reduced her to her present condition. We should pity, not despise her for that."

"Well, well! Since you've so set your mind upon it I'll see her, though I do think it folly. But when shall we go this morning?"

"She will not be at home during the day; we will call there this evening."

"But on second thought, Hester, how can we find her. You say you only met her on the street."

"Yes; but I followed her for some time and saw her at last enter a house on Water street."

"Well, then, it's decided; we'll go this evening." And Mr. Gray hurried away to his place of business, leaving his lady-wife to meditate over her new found hope.

A fine-looking well-preserved woman of forty was Mrs. Gray—one who had been reared in luxury, and who, until within a few years, had known nothing of grief or care. The one great sorrow of her life was the loss of her only child—a beautiful girl—who died of consumption some months previous to the commencement of our story.

A few days before the conversation just related, she chanced to meet our friend Elsie on the street, and was so struck with her resemblance to her lost daughter that she resolved to adopt her as her own—providing, of course, that she could obtain Mr. Gray's consent, which she greatly doubted, as he was a very matter-of-fact gentleman, and entertained a wholesome horror of all such "romantic nonsense," as he termed it. How she succeeded, we have already seen.

When Elsie returned to her humble home that night, she was greatly surprised to learn that a lady and gentleman had been for some time waiting there to see her. Supposing there must be some mistake, she hastily repaired to the room where they were, and found Mr. and Mrs. Gray. We will not pause to relate all that transpired that evening; suffice it to say that even Mr. Gray's objections melted away before Elsie's extraordinary likeness to his own beloved child; and a short time after found her installed in their splendid home, in their lost one's place. At first she could hardly realize her situation—the change was so great from the toilsome, dreary life she had led, to the one of ease and enjoyment now before her; and when, at length, she came to feel it was no dream, but a bright and pleasant reality, her love and gratitude toward her benefactors was unbounded.

Let us pass lightly over the space of three years, and now glance once more at our friends. A large and brilliant company are assembled in the family mansion of the Grays, to celebrate not only the return of the family from Europe—where they have been passing the last year—but also the marriage of the only daughter to a young artist whom she met in Italy, and who is well worthy of her choice. You would hardly recognize in the elegant and accomplished Miss Gray—who is the idol of the gay crowd about her—the poor, hopeless factory-girl of other days. And as she stands there receiving the congratulations of her many friends, we will leave her, hoping that, as her earlier years had been full of darkness and sorrow, her later ones may be crowned with light and joy.

THE FAMILY CIRCLE.—No earthly circle can be compared with that of the family. It comprises all the human heart most values and delights in. It is the center where all the human affections meet and entwine, the vessel into which they all pour themselves with such joyous freedom. There is no one word which contains in it so many endearing associations and precious remembrances, hid in the heart like gold. It appeals at once to the very centre of man's being,—his "heart of hearts." All that is sweet, soothing, tender, and true, is wrapt up in that one name. It speaks not of one circle or one bond; but of many circles and many bonds,—all of them near the heart. The family home, the family hearth, the family table, family habits, family voices, family tokens, family salutations, family melodies, family joys and sorrows; what a mine of recollections lie under that one word! Take these away and earth becomes a graveyard of crumbling bones; and man are so many grains of loosened sand, or at best, but as the fragments of a torn flower, which the winds are scattering abroad.

All that is beautiful in human relationship, or tender in human affection, or gentle in human intercourse;—all that is loveable and precious in the movements of a human heart from its lowest depth to its uppermost surface, all these are wrapt up in the one name of family. For close-knit bonds, for steadfast faithfulness in love, for depth of sympathy, for endurance in trial and danger—where shall we find anything that can be compared to the story of earth's family circle? Conjugal love, parental love, brotherly love, sisterly love,—all are here. The many streams of human affection empty themselves into it, or flow out of it for the fertility and gladness of the earth.

What shall we do for Mrs. Pheltonise.

Can anybody tell us what is to be done for Mrs. Pheltonise?

Old Bushelman, the tailor, was her father; and her husband, now of the great firm of Skrimpem & Co., came to town a barefooted boy, and slept on the door-steps, and in the Park.

He was a bookkeeper when he married Nancy Bushelman, and they lived in a modest way enough in the upper part of a house, in Pike street, where Mrs. Nancy did her own work, quite independent of intelligence offices, and used to run out of mornings in a calico wrapper, with a market-basket on her arm, and a key dangling in her fingers.

Now they have a house in Twenty-third street, a villa at Newport, with Gothic towers, and an Egyptian porch; and I question if Mrs. Pheltonise could tell the difference between a frying-pan and a gridiron.

She has grown very fat and red in the face, interlards her conversation with bad french, and speaks of residing in Paris.

"It is quite dreadful, my dear!" she is in the habit of saying. "America grows more unbearable every day. Just imagine that I have been patronizing Madame Grozier for the last, three years—actually, my dear, sending Clara Elvina and Maria Sapphira there to school all that time, and have only just discovered that my shoemaker's daughter goes there, too; and if you can believe it, is in the same class."

"Grotier, too! I should have thought she would have had more decency than to admit such a person. That's the consequence of Republicanism; and then look how we are governed!"

"I passed the polls to-day, and saw men voting there who actually wore patched pantaloons and flannel shirts! To think that such persons should be allowed to vote—these low people who ought to be thankful if we condescend to govern them."

"They manage things better in France. Ah, my dear! Paris is the place for me. America is too shocking!"

Again, I ask, what can be done for Mrs. Pheltonise?

Is there no philanthropist who will explain to our deluded people the inestimable privileges of being governed by the Pheltonises, and teach the daughters of misguided shoemakers their proper place? Will no one save our little republic from utter desolation by the withdrawal of this brilliant light of society? I pause for a reply.

Oh My.—A lady was the other day describing to her husband some poor but decent people she had visited, and concluded by revealing the following climax of folly to which they had attained. "And my dear, only think, they have a rag carpet on the floor—And yet their children call their parents pa and ma!"

Why is a cat's tail like a swan's bosom? Because it grows down.

East Haddam Journal.

SATURDAY MORNING FEBRUARY 18.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTH DAY.—We would call the attention of our readers to the notice in another column of a "grand celebration" at the Gelston House on the 22d (next Wednesday.) We are assured by the committee of arrangements that every effort is being made to render the occasion as pleasant and agreeable as possible to all that may be present.

DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION.—The democrats of Connecticut met in Convention at Hartford on Wednesday, to nominate a State ticket. The Convention met at 10 o'clock and was presided over by H. M. Edward A. Phelps.

The Convention has shown good judgment in this nomination, and we predict the Col's election, provided Buckingham don't get the most vote. We are bound to be a true prophet.

The delegates to the Charlestown Convention are, at large—James T. Pratt, Samuel Arnold, Andrew C. Lippitt, W. D. Bishop.

CONGRESS.—The signing of the Post office appropriation bill by the President, and the appointment of standing committees by the Speaker makes up the business of the week, if we except a number of unsuccessful ballottings, for Printer to the House.

In another column will be found a somewhat extended obituary notice, on the death of Miss F. A. Chapman, a native of this town, who died at Van Buren Ark., on the 21st of last month.

Rev. Charles Eastman has resigned his pastorage in the 4th Methodist church New Haven, and accepted a call from the 2nd Methodist church Elmira N. Y.

Joel T. Green of Rocky Hill, who was charged with procuring the death of Miss Jane Thrall, a member of his family, and whose examination was concluded on Monday last, has been discharged.

A sharp snow storm set in on Wednesday afternoon and continued unabated till late Thursday night, leaving a large body of snow as the result of its labors.

George W. Bishop of New Haven has sued The Palladium for $10,000 damages, for publishing that he was charged with kidnapping and selling into slavery a negro boy.

DEATH OF A STEAMBOAT PILOT.—Mr. Horace A. Vail, formerly of Clinton, in this State, and well known as a pilot on the City of Hartford and other boats on the Connecticut River, as well as between Stonington and New York, on which route he was in service for several years, died on Monday, of lung fever, after a long and painful illness.

The flags of the steamboats on the line between New Haven and New York were displayed at half mast yesterday, in token of respect to the memory of Mr. Vail.

LARGE HEADS IN SUFFIELD, Ct.—The editor of the Phrenological Journal, in an article entitled "Heads and Hats," says: "It was formerly said by the hat merchants of Hartford, Conn., that a greater proportionate number of large-sized hats were sold to the citizens of Suffield, in that State, than to any other country town in that vicinity."

DARING ESCAPE FROM PRISON.—Last week a girl named Mary Fuller, made her escape from the fifth story of the Columbus (Ohio) State prison, by passing out of her window and along the side of the building upon a cornice, or water table, about 18 inches broad.

DANIEL E. SICKLES.—The New York correspondent of the Charlestown Courier says rumor obtains very generally that the Hon. Daniel E. Sickles has experienced a change of heart, and that he contemplates connecting himself with some church.

DEATH RESULTING FROM THE SCRATCH OF A PIN.—The wife of Elsha Holmes, of Holmdel, Monmouth county, N. J., scratched her thumb with a pin, a few days since, and died with the lockjaw, from the effects of it, in less than forty-eight hours.

It is understood that a number of the members of the Connecticut bar are candidates for the vacancy occasioned by Judge Ingersoll's death.

Scarlet Fever is said to prevail very extensively in Hartford, one Physician estimating that not less than 200 cases now exist in the City.

Mrs. Eliza Lee Follen, widow of Prof. Charles Follen of Boston, died at her residence in Brookline, Thursday afternoon, Jan. 26th, of typhus fever.

The trial of James Hazlett, ended on Friday. Mr. Green made an able defence. The jury on Saturday morning brought in a verdict of guilty.

The subject of Religion and Temperance are both exciting great interest all over Windham County at the present time. Revivals are chronicled in East and West Killingly, in Thompson, Putnam and Plainfield.

From the Van Buren (Ark.) Free Press. DEATH OF MISS F. A. CHAPMAN.—Seldom has our community been called upon to mourn the loss of one more universally beloved than this lady.

Miss Chapman came to our city, some eight years since, from Connecticut, and commenced teaching school, in which pursuit she continued until her sickness and death.

She was a lady of warm feelings and noble impulses; possessed of an amiable and a generous spirit, she made personal friends with all with whom she associated.

At the grave, the young ladies who had been instructed by her in days past, or were her scholars at the time of her decease, cast a twig of evergreen into her grave as a token of the unfading, unwithering affection with which they held her in remembrance.

Soon all was over, the last tribute of respect to the memory of Miss Chapman, was paid. "And then all took A parting look, And turned away with tearful eyes."

An esteemed friend and acquaintance of Miss Chapman has handed us the following: Died in this City, on the 21st inst., of pneumonia, at the residence of Mrs. Moore, Miss ERANCES A. CHAPMAN.

Miss Chapman was a native of East Haddam, Conn., but emigrated to the South in early life and has resided in this City about eight years.

In the death of Miss Chapman, the cause of female education in Van Buren, has suffered an irreparable loss, and society lost to mourn one of its brightest ornaments.

JAMES G. WELLS. CHINA HALL 142 State Street.

Boot and Shoe Emporium
110 STATE ST., HARTFORD.
Never were such Bargains offered as we offer
TO-DAY

And shall continue to offer from this day forth. At this time of the year it is highly important that the feet should be kept dry, and ENSIGN has everything in the way of

Rubber Boots and Shoes
That can be called for; and the prices will certainly be found satisfactory.

REMEMBER
It is Ensign Himself!!
The man who undersells them all, who makes this statement.

Our Poem to-day is entitled "SPORTING NEWS." Our friends will observe that no pains or expense has been spared in bringing the most distant counties before them

SPORTING NEWS.
The Chinese Ambassador, so the tale goes, Has just had a great boxing bout; At Peking, the Chinese have boxed him up tight, To prevent him from pekin about. To punish these rascally "Sons of the Moon," We suggest to Buchanan this course - As hanging's too good for them—bring them all here, And Ensign will boot them with pleasure.

Yes, we are booting all creation, at a small expense, and shoeing up the multitude BY THOUSANDS. From England we learn that Tom Sayers has been out, With Brattles to have a few rounds; Although Sayers was the victor, the papers all say, He received at least two hundred pounds; They speak of the champion's "terrible right," And the spikes that were in Brattle's shoe; But we fear not "the right," and care naught for the spike, For Ensign has rights and lefts too.

Yes, rights and lefts of every variety, splendid high heel rights and lefts, rights and lefts without heels, all

SELLING OFF CHEAP.
The Canadians grumble, and justly complain Of the visits of States "men of might," Who not only favor the use of free soil, But also enjoy a free fight. Messrs. Kelly and Price have just made them a call, The result we presume you all know; While in Boston the Price stock is now looking up, At Ensign's the prices are low.

Yes—15 or 20 per cent, lower than any other establishment. We sell everything low at Ensigns Boot & Shoe Emporium.

Between shoe-dealers lately a "conflict" has waged—"Irrepressible," Seward would say— But Ensign has gallantly fought the good fight. And stands at the head at this day.

Boots, Gaiters and Shoes, and Rubbers, all kinds, Will be sold very cheap for "the gelt"; The public are hereby invited to call And examine the champion's belt.

Our next Poem will be entitled "Occupations of the Poets." It would have appeared to-day, but for the exciting news from China and elsewhere, which we hasten to make known.

Respectfully, the public's old favorite,
S. A. ENSIGN.

THE FERRY,
AT GOODSPEED'S LANDING.

THE subscriber begs leave to inform the public that he having just purchased an interest in the above named property, and furnished it with new and much improved Boats, is determined to make fit the most desirable and popular ferry on the river. Please call and try us.

FURNITURE!!

THE subscriber would respectfully announce that he is receiving FURNITURE almost every week from one of the largest wholesale establishments in New York that deals wholly in Rose Wood, Mahogany and Black Walnut Furniture. They say in their price-list that their Catalogue of Goods is made up and Prices carried out with a view of doing wholly a cash business and at so small advance from cost that they cannot afford to credit any one, and knowing as I do that some of the closest cash buyers in the State purchase of the same house and from the same price list, I do not hesitate to say that I can sell as good

Pete a Totes,
Sofas,
Chairs,
Tables, &c.,

for as little money as any other man in the State. Those who are in want of a PARLOR SUITE, or any part thereof, are respectfully invited to call and examine my assortment as I am sure they cannot possibly do better than to purchase of me.

It is well known by almost every one that the Furniture business has undergone a great change within a few years in regard to the mode of manufacturing. Instead of each retail dealer manufacturing his work, as formerly, New York and Boston furnish Connecticut with almost all her parlor furniture from the best Rosewood suites down to the cheapest article that can possibly be got up. Different parts of Massachusetts are noted for their Bedstead and Chair factories from which Connecticut is supplied, and from which the proprietor of the Furniture Warehouses at Goodspeed's Landing will endeavor to keep well supplied, and in addition to Furniture of all sorts, sizes, and descriptions, can be found at all times a good assortment of

Looking Glasses, Clocks, Wood
and Willow Ware, Window
Shades and Trimmings,
Spring Beds, Feathers,
Mattresses, &c., &c.,

which the subscriber offers for sale lower than the same quality of goods can be bought at any other establishment in the State. One Price—Terms Cash—and no grumbling. SAMUEL COOK, Goodspeed's Landing, East Haddam.

ENSIGN,
THE GREATEST LIVING
HUMBUG, AND
PARKER & WARD,
THE PEOPLE'S FAVORITES,

ARE altogether two different names. Ensign is noted for his loud pretensions. While PARKER & WARD are known by their really low prices on

BOOTS AND SHOES,
we defy Ensign or his tribe to compete with us in prices.

It is startling "but nevertheless true that we do sell Ladies Kid Slips at 25 cts. a pair, and Women's Cloth Congress Gaiters at 58 cts. a pair.

ENSIGN HAS HAD HIS DAY,
PARKER & WARD, NOW TAKE THE LEAD,

and will continue to do so. We have just received a large and magnificent stock of

Hats, Caps, Boots and Shoes, and we will sell them at prices which will astonish you.

CITIZENS OF EAST HADDAM,
ATTENTION,
YOUR LITTLE COUNTRY SHOE STORES ARE NOWHERE!!!

And why? Simply because we sell more goods in one day than the small concerns sell in a month. They sell as cheap as they can but cannot compete with us in prices.

Give us a call, you shall be well treated and we guarantee that you can more than pay your expenses to Middletown by buying your Hats, Caps, Boots and Shoes here.

Remember the place,

ATTWOOD,
FIRED off a Pop-Gun, No. 3, last week

the discharge did not hurt any one, the powder being of poor quality, he advises the people of Middletown to come down to East Haddam and buy Schorl Books of him, just as though they would. When Sissons of Moodus can supply the million, Attwood won't stand the ghost of a chance. Attwood says the Middletown people need School Books, perhaps they do, they know where to get them too. PUTNAM of Middletown has supplied them this ten years and intends to for ten years to come, and he also intends to sell lots of Books of all kinds to the East Haddam citizens, including Attwood himself. Now if our friend wants to sell cheap, let him send his orders to Putnam, who will fill them promptly, and at prices that will keep the East Haddam patronage at home. Try it Attwood before you load Pop Gun No. 4.

Grover & Baker's
CELEBRATED
FAMILY SEWING MACHINE.

NEW STYLES—PRICES FROM $50 TO $125.
EXTRA CHARGE OF $5 FOR FRAMES.

These Machines sew from two spools, as purchased from the store, requiring no re-winding of thread; they Hem, Fell, Gather and Stitch in a superior style, finishing each seam by their own operation, without recourse to the hand-needle, as is required by other machine. They will do better and cheaper sewing than a seamstress can, even if she works for one cent an hour, and are, unquestionably, the best Machines in the market for family sewing, on account of their simplicity, durability, ease of management, and adaptation to all varieties of family sewing—executing either heavy or fine work with equal facility, and without special adjustment.

As evidence of the unquestioned superiority of their Machines, the GROVER & BAKER SEWING MACHINE COMPANY beg leave to respectfully refer to the following

TESTIMONIALS.

"Having had one of Grover & Baker's Machines in my family for nearly a year and a half. I take pleasure in commending it as every way reliable for the purpose for which it is designed—Family Sewing."—Mrs. Joshua Leavitt, wife of Rev. Dr. Leavitt, Editor of N. Y. Independent.
"I confess myself delighted with your Sewing Machine, which has been in my family for many months. It has always been ready for duty, requiring no adjustment, and is easily adapted to every variety of family sewing, by simply changing the spools of thread."—Mrs. Elizabeth Strickland, wife of Rev. Dr. Strickland, Editor of N. Y. Christian Advocate.

"After trying several different good machines, I preferred yours, on account of its simplicity, and the perfect ease with which it is managed, as well as the strength and durability of the seam. After long experience, I feel competent to speak in this manner, and to confidently recommend it for every variety of family sewing."—Mrs. E. B. Spooner, wife of the Editor of Brooklyn Star.

"I have used a GROVER & BAKER Sewing Machine for two years, and have found it adapted to all kinds of family sewing, from Cambric to Broadcloth. Garments have been worn out without the giving way of a stitch. The Machine is easily kept in order, and easily used."—Mrs. A. B. Whipple, wife of Rev. Geo. Whipple, N. Y.

"Your Sewing Machine has been in use in my family the past two years, and the ladies request me to give you their testimonials to its perfect adaption, as well as labour-saving qualities in the performance of family and household sewing." Robert Boorman, New York.

"For several months we have used Grover & Baker's Sewing Machine, and have come to the conclusion that every lady who desires her sewing beautifully and quickly done, would be most fortunate in possessing one of these reliable and indefatigable iron needle-women, whose combined qualities of beauty, strength and simplicity are invaluable."—J. W. Morris, daughter of Gen. Geo. P. Morris, of the Home Journal.

Extract of a letter from Thos. R. Leavitt, Esq., an American gentleman, now resident in Sydney, New South Wales, dated Jan. 12, 1858:
"I had a tent made in Melbourne in 1853, in which there were over three thousand yards of sewing done with one of Grover & Baker's Machines, and a single seam of that has stood out all the double seams sewed by sailors with a needle and twine."

"If Homer could be called up from his murky haunts, he would sing the advent of Grover & Baker as a more benignant miracle of art than was ever Vulcan's smithy. He would denounce midnight shirt-making as 'the direful spring of woes unnumbered.'"—Prof. North.

"I take pleasure in saying that the Grover & Baker Sewing Machines have more than sustained my expectation. After trying and returning others, I have three of them in operation in my different places, and, after four years' trial, have no fault to find."—J. H. Hammond, Senator of South Carolina.

"My wife has had one of Grover & Baker's Family Sewing Machines for some time, and I am satisfied it is one of the best labor-saving machines that has been invented. I take much pleasure in recommending it to the public."—J. G. Harris, Governor of Tennessee.

"It is a beautiful thing, and puts everybody into an excitement of good humor. Were I a Catholic, I should insist upon Saints Grover & Baker having an eternal holiday in commemoration of their good deeds for humanity."—Cassius M. Clay.

"I think it by far the best patent in use. This machine can be adapted from the finest cambric to the heaviest cassimere. It sews faster, stronger, and more beautifully than any one can imagine. If mine could not be replaced, money could not buy it."—Mrs. J. G. Brown, Nashville, Tenn.

"It is speedy, very neat, and durable in its work; is easily understood and kept in repair. I earnestly recommend this machine to all my acquaintances and others."—Mrs. M. A. Forrest Memphis, Tenn.

"We find this machine to work to our satisfaction, and with pleasure recommend it to the public, as we believe the Grover & Baker to be the best machine in use."—Deary Brothers, Allouima Tenn.

"If used exclusively for family purposes, with ordinary care, I will wager they will last one three score years and ten, and not get out of fix."—John Erskine, Nashville, Tenn.

"I have had your machine for several weeks, and am perfectly satisfied that the work it does is the best and most beautiful made."—Maggie Anson, Nashville, Tenn.
"I use my machine upon coats, dress-making, and fine linen stitching, and the work is admirable—far better than the best hand-sewing, or any other machine I have seen."—Lucy B. Thompson, Nashville, Tenn.
"I find the work the strongest and most beautiful I have ever seen, made either by hand or machine, and regard the Grover & Baker Machine as one of the greatest blessings to our sex."—Mrs. Taylor, Nashville, Tenn.

DR. C. D. WRIGHT,
OF LEESVILLE, CONN.

Member of the Analytical School of Medicine continues to apply
Dr. J. Clawson Kelley's Medicines, in the treatment of all Chronic and Acute Diseases, of Men, Women and Children.

The Analytical System, uncompromisingly opposes all mineral medicines, the deleterious practice of bleeding, and other fallacious resources of the old school or regular practice; it has asserted its superiority in the success with which it has been attended, and relies on Vegetable Remedies alone for the accomplishment of satisfactory results in the treatment of disease. In the fulfillment of its mission, the leveled dart of death for a while is turned aside, the sharp pang soothed, the fever's fire allayed, the nerves braced once more: the heart cheered again, and balmy days and soft nights imparted.
A practical proof of its efficient action, will be presented to all, who will call upon Dr. Wright. Advise free.
