

Three Kisses.
By CLARA B. THORNBROOK.

I kiss the dainty fingers
And wish them good success:
May comfort sweet and order
Their work and cunning bless.

I kiss the feet to you,
Unskilled to walk our way,
And wish them patient courage
To tread their tangled maze.

I kiss the little eyelids:
O, Father, guide her sight
Until, all dimness over,
She sees thy perfect light!

A LITTLE COWARD.

That was what Miss Merivale had called her that morning, when she trembled and turned pale because the black mare roared with her. She begged Sir Robert to take her off, and stood in ignominious safety while Agatha Merivale mounted Stella and rode off triumphantly down the avenue. She was a coward. She did not deny it, and was sometimes very much ashamed of it, but no one had seemed to mind it, until Agatha Merivale came, her riding and hunting; and everybody admired Agatha so much, even Sir Robert!

She almost hated Agatha! You see, until Agatha came they had been so happy at De Rossett. Little orphan Madeline, Leigh had never been so happy in her life as when she was with her guardian, and her son, Sir Robert. They were so kind and good to her. They petted her and loved her. And now Agatha had come, and for two weeks had monopolized Sir Robert and kept the house in a turmoil of gaiety, and laughed at Lina, and made her life a hell, and everybody said Sir Robert was married to Miss Merivale. Lina made a stern resolve that she would run away from the hall when that event took place. Runaway! She would run away now! Not far, though—she was too much of a coward to venture far into the world alone and she thought she would go to "Annie Margaret's," as she called Lady de Rossett's widowed sister-in-law, who lived in a quiet, comfortable house a mile away from the hall.

Mrs. Harrington was an invalid, paralyzed and confined to her bed. She was rather a grim old lady, but she was so kind and good to her, and she was so much inclined to love her, that Lina had never been so happy in her life as when she was with her guardian, and her son, Sir Robert. They were so kind and good to her. They petted her and loved her. And now Agatha had come, and for two weeks had monopolized Sir Robert and kept the house in a turmoil of gaiety, and laughed at Lina, and made her life a hell, and everybody said Sir Robert was married to Miss Merivale. Lina made a stern resolve that she would run away from the hall when that event took place. Runaway! She would run away now! Not far, though—she was too much of a coward to venture far into the world alone and she thought she would go to "Annie Margaret's," as she called Lady de Rossett's widowed sister-in-law, who lived in a quiet, comfortable house a mile away from the hall.

With Lina, and the west door here will be open. And, Jim, look here, when you get your wig, you are to take me with you—your wife, mind!"

The voices grew fainter. Evidently the speakers were moving away from the house. But Lina had heard enough. Sick with terror, she leaped against the pantry wall a moment, and tried to think. What did it all mean? Robbery! murder! What no help from her! Her first instinct was to fly out of the house and across the field to the Hall. But her abscence would be instantly discovered, she knew, and then poor Aunt Margaret would be alone with those wretches. No, she must not go; but to stand here like a dog would do good. She flew like a bird along the halls and up stairs, Leo pacing by her side. At Aunt Margaret's door she paused, and a sudden thought came to her. She would send Leo home for help!

"Where is the spoon, child? How long you stayd. Good heavens! what is the matter?" cried the old lady, as she saw the girl's white, terrified face. Lina began some reply, but, instantly remembered that Aunt Margaret must be told the whole story or nothing could be done to save her. She did tell it, and Aunt Margaret listened in silent consternation; and then burst out impatiently with:

"Good heavens! child! Why don't you run right in and see what is the matter?"

"Because I knew Parkins would be up here in a few minutes and find I was gone, and then—"

"Ah, well. So you stayed to save the old woman, if you could. What are you doing, child? Why don't you lock the door and pile things against it? Good God! if I was your guardian, I should be ashamed of you!"

But Lina did not speak for a moment. She had found a pencil and paper, and was rapidly writing a few words. When she had finished—

"Now," she said, "when Parkins comes tell her I am to sleep on her couch here in your room, and she must go somewhere else. I will be back in a moment. Leo!"

Out of the room she darted, and down the hall, where she unbarred and passed through. Then, kneeling in the shadow of a pillar on the portico, she tied the note tightly in her handkerchief round Leo's neck.

She put her arm round his neck after that, kissed his forehead, and a half sob escaped her.

"Is that you, miss? Say a smooth voice from the hall. 'Why, whatever are you doing in the dark there?'"

Lina sprang up as if she had been shot.

"I am sending the dog home," she said, speaking quietly, though the color of her face had turned as white as paper.

"Don't you be afraid," she said, as soon as I found your note!" he said. "Leo went to my room, and I found him there when I left the drawing-room, after 11 o'clock."

"Where are those dreadful men?" Lina asked, raising her head dizzily and looking round with a shudder.

"Never mind," he said. "They were taken by the men who followed me. My brave little darling! What a heroine you are!"

Two months later, when Parkins and the men were brought to trial, Aunt Margaret walked into the witness-box, and gave her testimony with grim directness and self-possession. Lina gave her the most tremulous and eloquent evidence she had ever given. She was so true and so honest, and so intensely loved, and so no wonder that Sir Robert was going to marry her.

The crowd around the court gave her three cheers as she left the court room, walking between Sir Robert and his mother, and three more for Sir Robert, and three more for Leo, who had been so true and so honest, and so intensely loved, and so no wonder that Sir Robert was going to marry her.

G. H. Grumman, Agt. at the Branchville Ice Tool Works, is manufacturing a patent ice chisel, ingeniously designed for use on Railroad freight cars, etc.

Liquor dealers ought to combine and guard all the railroad tracks or they will soon lose all their customers at the rate they are being killed off this summer.

The Hartford Post has done a new dress, and looks just about right. The type is large and clear, and the readers of the Post will appreciate it.

The first M. E. church Sunday school went to Roton, Wednesday, giving the children the experience of old-fashioned sloop navigation assisted by a modern steam tug.

A meeting of the Board of Trade is called for this (Tuesday) evening to consider the matter of establishing a company here for the manufacture of this much used and staple article, and the carrying on of the same by the men of Norwalk may turn out and thoroughly ventilate the subject. Certain facts and figures, letters, etc., will be placed before the meeting, and men thoroughly learned in the manufacture will be present. The matter has been placed before several of the leading manufacturers, and cap and tinners, who, so far as their knowledge goes in this line, give their hearty approval. Consider the fact that there are now but two mills in the county making a No. 1 Rhode Island, one being in Ohio, the other in Rhode Island, and each giving their salaried men in New York, and each giving thought to the freight charges, and to the market Norwalk would have over either.

Wadding is used in large quantities by ready-made clothing manufacturers. In an editorial the New York Herald of July 31st says: "In 1870 the value of all the men's clothing manufactured in the United States was $100,000,000. It is now $1,000,000,000. In 1880 a hundred and twenty-five million dollars worth was made in the five cities of New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston and Cincinnati." Here, then, is a rapidly growing industry, and wadding is one of its necessary supplies. Wadding is largely used by tailors, furriers, and cap makers, and is in great demand, and is constantly increasing chances for its use.

The proposition is to fit up a mill to run all grades, No. 1 to 4 and shoddy. The mill prices are to-day: No. 1, 18 cents; No. 2, 16 cents; No. 3, 14 cents; No. 4, 12 cents; No. 5, 10 cents; No. 6, 8 cents; No. 7, 6 cents; No. 8, 4 cents; No. 9, 2 cents; No. 10, 1 cent.

Golden Dams, James Elverson, Philadelphia.—This superb quality of paper still maintains its well deserved popularity. No paper, with which we are acquainted affords the little people so much pure and healthful reading, at so one entertaining and elevating.

Geo. A. White, of Spring Hill, had an exciting encounter with an adder one day last week. His snakebait jumped at him from the woodpile without warning, and he was so badly bitten that he had to be taken to the hospital. He succeeded in killing the snake, which was of the flat head species of two feet long.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Taylor are spending a few weeks at the Taylor residence in Westport. They are the famous printing press manufacturer, and has made and sold many better presses during the last half century, probably than any other manufacturer or firm in the country, with possibly one exception.

On Friday morning, at Greenwich station, the six o'clock train out of New York, collided with a Harlem freight train. The freight locomotive dashed into the rear of the milk train, telescoping the caboose and the passenger car, and piling them upon the freight car ahead. Two or three freight cars left the track. No one was hurt, a number of passengers who were in the car being warned by Conductor Wyman in time to leave.

Another surprise awaits the amusement-loving public, and it is what has long been needed in our pretty little Opera House. The enterprising manager, Mr. F. W. Mitchell, who is ever alive to the comfort of his patrons, will have placed on the Opera House stage a new and improved variety of seats, which will be sold at a very low price. The seats are of the latest design, and are of the most comfortable and durable material. They will be sold at a very low price, and are of the most comfortable and durable material.

Exchange of bonds of the New York department as fast as was expected. They are sufficiently numerous, however, to keep the large force of clerks steadily at work. In fact, complaints are made that the force is not large enough, and there is danger of the work falling some what behind. As the 20th of the month falls upon Sunday, the exchange of bonds will not be commenced until Monday, the 21st, or as soon after the 20th as possible.

General H. B. Palm and family left for Deer Lake, yesterday, and by the way, a great multitude of Washington people, including several members of Congress, have gone to Mount Desert Island this season.

The favorite route also, has been from New York to London, by way of Boston, and thence by the City of Worcester and the New London and Northern Railroad to Portland, where the well-known Mount Desert Island, give safe and speedy transit to this picturesque excursion resort, of all the summer season tourists of New England. As Ever, B.

London Assurance. Everything is progressing finely for the performance of the above named play—the best Boucicault ever wrote—on the evening of Sept. 1st. Miss Dyer promises us one of the best companies that has ever appeared in Norwalk, and the conductor of her work we may depend on her doing so.

Next week we will give the names of the leading members of the company which, in the same that supported her at the Newport Casino.

Judge John B. Rector, of Austin, Texas, with his wife, is to visit Norwalk for the first time since, as a student, he fitted for Yale with Edgar Finney and others at the Union High School, under the tutoring of Messrs. Brigham and Polwin. He will see many changes in the city, and will be glad to meet the old friends who were with him, and to see the last rest. Mr. Rector has been a distinguished judge on the bench of his State and many times urged to accept a nomination for Congress in the 10th Texas district. But when it was deemed a necessary condition of his acceptance, he declined, and he is now a member of the Republican, but by some it is considered that his early education was acquired here in old Norwalk, which used to be and is now going for anywhere from 200 to 300 Republican majority, his soundness in politics, as in everything else, is not much to be wondered at. We give the Judge a right royal greeting, and welcome him to the scenes of his boyhood days.

The Wilson Point Extension. The Railroad Commissioners examined the extension of the line of the Danbury & Norwalk Railroad to Wilson Point, on Friday last, and gave the company a favorable report, and the same was approved for public sale. After the examination, the commissioners took a sail to Roton Point, where they were served with an lily-of-the-valley dinner, got up in Acker's best style, and the business manager of the board will be able, if he survives, to give a weighty certificate, of his approval, of the capability of the line, to the sea.

The regular trains from Danbury, and commenced running to the point yesterday, and we are informed that additional trains will be put on in a few days.

The Roton Point Steamer will connect with the trains, and will also land and receive passengers at the Bell Island pier.

Talking about Post Office growth, it should be remembered that while Norwalk has two offices of the second class, the salaries of which amount to $4,400, she has also four other offices, and when the station is made Down Town, this will be a demand for still another post office in that vicinity.

One feature connected with the recent attempt to locate the Wilson Sewing Machine works here is deserving of special and honorable mention. Mrs. Lynch very generously offered to donate all the space in her yard, for a water reservoir, with a good front on Water street. This location is very desirable, and was pronounced by Mr. Shelton the best he had seen, being close to the Danbury & Norwalk Railroad track, and to the harbor. If the works had been located here, now streets would have been opened on the road, and the water reservoir would be for foreman and other connected with the works.

Express trains and Draw Bridges. We are glad to see that the rumor, to which we alluded last week, that the Railroad Company had given permission for the draw bridges to cross Draw Bridges without coming to a full stop, is contradicted.

The rumor was freely circulated on the trains of the consolidated road several days before we alluded to it, and was confidently affirmed by parties from Bridgeport, who are generally well informed on railroad matters.

Iron Fences.—Our old friend, E. M. Merritt, having returned to Norwalk, to engage in business, has taken a shop on Leonard street, and is making a specialty of the manufacture of wrought iron fences. He has secured the contract for building the new fence for the Over River School district, as we have before stated, and is prepared to fill all orders in the best manner.

Beil Island. This new summer Sound side resort, is filled with visitors, and hundreds more would go, if the weather were not so disagreeable. There are some three hundred there now and the promise is that the cottage accommodation will be many times multiplied next season. We congratulate Messrs Foster and Mandell on the success of their enterprise.

The Neptune club sailed from the Vineyard on Wednesday night and reached here safely on Saturday noon. They all report having enjoyed a most delightful cruise, but one with no startling incidents, few hair breath escapes and no serious accidents. The fog, however, will not be devoid of its interest, for the Neptunes are there is always pleasure and solid enjoyment.

The fare to Roton from Norwalk for the round trip on the Danbury Railroad is forty-five cents, from South Norwalk thirty cents.

Up-Down passengers can save five cents by taking the fare to Roton from South Norwalk. Why is this?

The Rev. Eldridge Mix, D. D., well known in this vicinity, has accepted a call to the Central Congregational church at Fall River, Mass.
